Denmark (DS) Harms, Helle Mrs	Comment to Q.1: The Danish no vote is due to the fact that there are worldwide so many national fire regulations, which - we believe - will not change if an ISO standard is published. An ISO standard will just be yet another test method, which will make things more confusing for authorities, manufacturers and consumers.  Comment to Q.5: National fire regulations	2022-04-29

GB- 002		7.4	ISO/NP 16502-1	Te	Unfiltered test cigarettes are becoming increasingly difficult to source. Therefore either a globally available cigarette needs to be defined or we should consider an alternative smouldering test method.
GB -003		Whole document	ISO/NP 16502-1	Ge	Even though the UK is unlikely to implement an eventual ISO standard, it is very important from UK's point of view to be part of the work and be able to have a say in the direction this work goes, so it does not to differ significantly from BS EN 597-1:2015 Furniture. 					It is also important not to forget the export market for mattresses, surely if we intend to sell UK products in international markets who will be using the ISO standard, it would be beneficial to be part of the standard's development.
